POPULAR WOMAN

CALLED BY DEATH

Had Been in Bad Health For Several Months—Well Known Here

WIFE OF JUDGE GORDON.

The many friends of Mrs. Sallie Pritchett Gordon, wife of Judge J. F. Gordon of Madisonville, were grieved to learn of her death Tuesday afternoon of last week. The end which had been expected, came at the home of her mother, where she had been staying since her return from the Mayo Brothers sanitarium. Every thing which science, medical skill or loving hands could do had been done and those whose hearts were centered in her were helpless as the grim monster claimed their loved one. Mrs. Gordon has visited Marion often with her distinguished husband and was always the center of Marion social set when here, her brightness of mind and vivacious manner winning the hearts of all with whom she came in contact and the sorrow was universal when the news reached here that she had passed away.

Of her the Madisonville Hustler of July 26th says:

The people of Madisonville and elsewhere, who were acquainted with her, were not at all surprised but none the less shocked Tuesday afternoon when the news was sent abroad that Mrs. Sallie Gordon, wife of Judge J. F. Gordon had quietly breathed her last and had passed into the great beyond.

Mrs. Gordon was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Pritchett and was born and reared in Madisonville. At the time of her death she was in the forty-sixth year of her age. She was married to Judge J. F. Gordon, Oct. 1887. From this union there were no children. Her father died a number of years ago and is well remembered by the people as a successful physician. Her mother still survives.

Mrs. Gordon was the oldest of the family of five children. She is survived by two brothers Orlean Pritchett, of San Francisco, Cal., who is in the Government service and Cliff Pritchett, of Madisonville; and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Wake, of Money, Miss. and Mrs. Ed Arnold of Madisonville. The husband is still living.

Mrs. Gordon has been in a bad state of health for the last year or more. She and her husband had visited a number of noted specialists with the hope that something might be done to either cure or relieve the suffering that had come to her. For several months it had been known to the family that there was no hope that she would ever be any better in this world.

Mrs. Gordon was a woman of very fine natural ability. At one time she taught school, but since her marriage had given up the calling for which she seemed so well suited. She was a woman of wide information and was a member of several different literary societies. She was also a Church worker and before her health failed took a deep interest in all movements looking to the betterment of people morally.

She had been a member of the Methodist Church since she was a child. She was deeply pious and had on many occasions rep-

Wonderful Recovery for

Tolu, Ky. Boy.

Wonderful is the recovery of Thomas Phillips, a young man of Tolu, who was seriously wounded several weeks ago by the accidental discharge of an old gun. More dead than alive Phillips was brought to the Riverside hospital about ten hours after the accident from his home in Tolu with a dangerous wound in his abdomen. Surgeons who treated the young man, barely expected his recovery. Phillips had an old gun which he thought was unloaded, and heated it in a forge, and it was discharged suddenly. He was taken away from the hospital last night in the ambulance of Mattil, Efinger & Roth, and went to Tolu aboard the steamer, Lucile Nowland.

Tom Phillips and his young wife who was Miss Mabel Davidson, son, daughter of F. M. Davidson of the Crittenden Springs section have many friends who will rejoice at his speedy and remarkable recovery.

resented the Church, the Sunday schools and other institutions in district and state conventions. She was popular with all who knew her.

The funeral took place at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Mollie Pritchett, on North Seminary street Wednesday afternoon the services being conducted by Rev. C. F. Wimberly of the Methodist Church, after which the interment took place at Odd Fellows' cemetery.

As a mark of respect to the worth of Mrs. Gordon and the high esteem in which she was held, there was a wealth of flowers and a large attendance of those who came to mingle their tears with the family of the deceased. These flowers were laid by loving hands on the new made grave in the beautiful city of the dead.

—Madisonville Hustler, Friday, July 26, 1912.

Of Mrs. Gordon, the Princeton Leader has this to say:

"The news of the death of Mrs. J. F. Gordon at Madisonville Tuesday of this week was received by her many Princeton friends with much regret and profound sorrow.

Mrs. Gordon had been in bad health several months and some weeks ago accompanied by her husband, Judge J. F. Gordon, went to Battle Creek, Mich., and other points, with the hope of being restored to health, at least benefited, but she gradually grew worse, until all hope and effort in her behalf were given up, and on Tuesday about noon, she breathed her last.

Mrs. Gordon, with her husband spent a great portion of each year in Princeton, and was quite well known to most all Princeton people. She possessed many close personal friends and was quite a social favorite. Her pleasant friendly manners and brilliant intellect won for her the admiration of all with whom she came in contact. Her death is indeed greatly deplored, and the sympathy and prayers of her many friends go out for her bereaved husband, Judge Gordon.

HIGH ZINC PRICE RECORDS BROKEN.

Joplin, Mo., July 29.—Zinc blende crept up toward the $70 mark last week when a number of choice lots commanded $66 a ton or $6 in excess of the erstwhile record of $60 in 1905, which stood as the banner price for seven years.

Many choice lots brought $65 and $65.50 a ton. The basic range was from $62.50 to $58, assay basis of 60 per cent metallic zinc, an increase of $1 basis over the previous week, although the general tone of the market was much stronger.

The advance on the basis price during the past three weeks has been $1 regularly each week. Producers are predicting top settlements of $70 in the course of a month.

Calamine likewise is at the highest price in history, the basis 40 per cent metallic zinc being $30 to $31, with choice lots commanding a settlement of $37. Lead ore was weaker at $59 to $61 a ton.

Munsey Says The Democrats Will Win.

Washington, July, 25.—A cablegram from London, quoting Frank Munsey, Roosevelt's chief supporter, says the situation in America points to a change of political supremacy through the administration of affairs of the country passing into the hands of the democrats." The message caused a sensation in political circles. Munsey adds "It is certain that the only dangerous opponent Wilson has to meet is Roosevelt."

MARRIED MONDAY

Miss Nelle Olive and B. H. Ward Elected to Tenn., and Were Married.

BY A HUNTINGTON MINISTER.

B. H. Ward and Miss Nelle Olive, the handsome daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Olive, eloped Monday to Nashville, Tenn. A telegram received from the young lady by the family Tuesday morning informed them that the couple were married at Huntington, Tenn. by Rev. Johnson and that they would locate at Murray, Ky. for the present. The groom has recently assisted the Marion News in getting out an illustrated edition and we hear has a deal on to get out something similar for the Murray paper, which probably accounts for their going to that place. The groom came here several weeks ago, a stranger and has conducted himself in a way to win friends as well as a bride. Those who have met him and have had dealings with him speak well of him. The youth of the bride was the greatest objection her parents had to her marriage, but had they known of her intention to elope they doubtless would have consented to her marriage at home. The bride is a fine young woman, her mother's helpmate in house-keeping and beloved by a wide circle of friends and neighbors who love her for her sunny disposition, industry and kind heart.

The editor has known her from baby-hood and has only the best of wishes for her happiness in her marital relations.

Marion Graded and High School Bonds.

The trustees of the Marion Graded school district, sold Monday the $3000.00 worth of bonds recently authorized by a vote, to the Marion Bank at par, which is considered a good sale considering the low rate of interest. It is understood the bank's officials while regarding the bonds as good as those of the U. S. Government, had the interest of the entire district and the Marion graded school at heart when they made the liberal offer for the bonds. The building and repair committee now have the funds available immediately to pay for all work done on the building.

MORGANFIELD.

Day Breaks But the Sun Fails To Get Out. Shut Down of Electric Light Plant 3 Days.

We owe the subscribers of The Sun an explanation for our failure to get last Friday's issue to them.

We depend on the electric light plant for power and have no way of running our type setting machine and presses except by power furnished us by the electric light company.

Last Thursday morning both dynamos at the electric light plant were put out of commission and the plant could not turn a wheel, so to speak. An investigation showed that the "teaser" coils on both dynamos had been burned out. This compelled Mr. Gilbert to send them to Evansville and have the coils rewound.

For three days and three nights Morganfield was without lights or currents of any kind. Not only was the Sun unable to do anything but all enterprises in the city depending on the electric plant for power were put out of commission.

Not until Saturday night was the electric plant started up again. We could not therefore have gotten The Sun to but a comparatively small percentage of our subscribers before Monday and for that reason decided not to get out Friday's issue at all.

During a career of more than twenty-five years this is the first time, we believe, The Sun has ever missed an issue.

The electric light plant carries a duplicate equipment and it is something very unusual for both to be out of commission at the same time, in fact the service has been so reliable quite a number of plants in the city depend solely on the electric light company for power.—Morganfield Sun.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Lindsey Scott of Temple, Ind. For sale by all dealers.

THE SAD FORTUNE OF THE FARMER'S HAND

His Life One Ceaseless Round of Weary Toil—His Wages are Trifling—No Union to Protect Him.

The farm hand has no rest from the time when he is pried out of bed before sunrise in the morning until he hoists himself up to his attic bed room by his bootstraps, after the curfew has tolled the knell of parting day.

After breakfast he drives his team afield. The poets usually picture him as whistling blithely or singing a merry roundelay, but he does nothing of the kind. After eating several loaves and fishing at the same time, so the musical features are dropped. The farm hand always is lame in the morning. He wears heavy cowhide shoes of necessity, and they have a wonderful way of gathering up pebbles and cackle burrs and all manner of refuse, and every once in a while the martyr has to take his shoes off and shake the macadam out of them and pull a lot of thistles and things out of his feet. These misfortunes don't bother him much in the heat of the day, but the following morning the anguish is terrific.

His Shoes Torture Him.

His shoes feel like the iron boots of the old-time torture chamber, and every step is an execution. Imagine a man singing under such conditions! I used to go to the field weeping like Rachel, who refused to be comforted. Then began the long, weary day of plodding back and forth across a corn field, cultivating the young and tender vegetation. At that time the riding cultivator was a novelty, reserved for the idle rich. The hired man had to walk, and there is no labor more exhausting than walking on plowed ground. Your feet sink several inches at every step, and if the soil happens to be damp it sticks to your shoes and keeps on accumulating until each shoe weighs fifty pounds and looks like a wash tub, and you have to sit down and clean the real estate off with a trowel every now and then.

The man who has done much farm labor has a heavy, stiff-legged gait possessed by no other human being.

He lifts each foot with such an effort that you can hear the suction like the exhaust of a pump. When he stops for a minute, even on a city street, he holds his foot up sideways to see how much landscape is on it. A man never outgrows the habit. Even now, when seated on a luxurious Oriental divan, I often absent-mindedly pick up my feet and try to whittle the mud off them with a jack-knife.

It was lonesome work cultivating corn. Man, when he is young, is of a gregarious tendency, and it is a punishment to be alone all day, communing with sorrel mules. He naturally has lot of views concerning tariff and such things, but there is no satisfaction in having views unless you can pass them along.

Along about 10 o'clock in the morning, I began to get hungry and by 11 I would have eaten a porcupine. The fiercest thing in the world is the appetite one acquires while doing real farm work. The boss had an old cracked bell suspended from a pole, and the music of the spheres was a discord as compared with the divine harmony of that bell when it was rung at 12 o'clock. The mules, which had pattered along all forenoon in a comatose condition, knew the bell as well as I did, and when it rang they put up their proudly arched and glossy necks and hotfooted it to the barn as though going to a fire.

No Rest After Dinner.

After putting the mules in their separate boudoirs in the barn, and feeding them corn, I hastened to the house and did yeoman service at the table. Nobody wasted time in idle discourse while eating. The meal was disposed of with a fiery zeal, as though some sort of a prize was to be awarded to the consumer who got done first. After eating several loaves and fishing at the same time, so the musical features are dropped. The farm hand always is lame in the morning. He wears heavy cowhide shoes of necessity, and they have a wonderful way of gathering up pebbles and cackle burrs and all manner of refuse, and every once in a while the martyr has to take his shoes off and shake the macadam out of them and pull a lot of thistles and things out of his feet. These misfortunes don't bother him much in the heat of the day, but the following morning the anguish is terrific.

The boss always had something to be done immediately after dinner. Probably he spent most of the forenoon thinking up the job, for, no matter how generous and kind-hearted the employing farmer may be in a general way, he can't endure the thought of the hired man being idle for ten minutes.

There were sickles to grind, or a log to be sawed into stove lengths, or peradventure it was necessary to crawl under the barn to see if the mulley hen hadn't hatched out a brood. I used to resent the noon chores more than anything else, for they always seemed to have been planned deliberately just to keep one busy.

No Unions Possible.

The hired man is resenting things all the time, in his silent way. It is useless to say anything. He can't summon a walking delegate to carry his grievances to the seats of the mighty, for there are no seats of the mighty for him. Farm laborers are perhaps the only workingmen who can't have an effective organization. In order to have an organization men must hold meetings and elect officers and denounce the iron heel of oppression. Farm hands can't hold such meetings for obvious reasons. They are too widely separated, and they never have the time. Moreover, when the day's toil is ended they are too tired to care whether the Tyrant rides in his crimson chariot or not. Their highest ambition is to get to bed and give a demonstration in ground and lofty snoring.

With the farm laborers it is every man for himself. They must fight their own battles and gather their own rewards, and, as a consequence, they are the hardest worked and the poorest paid of all the toilers in the vineyard.—Walt Mason in Collier's Weekly.

Notice to Camp Holders at Piney Camp Ground.

The time for another annual camp meeting is close at hand. This ground was dedicated to the service of the Lord about one hundred years ago. It should be considered holy ground by the people who are so fortunate as to possess a camp there and they should take the same pride in keeping the camps in a sanitary clean and attractive condition, as they would take in their own homes. Every one should keep his premises clean, for the sake of cleanliness if for nothing else. There is considerable sickness during camp meeting that is due to the unsanitary condition of grounds and camps, besides there are many people who are infected while attending the meeting and return to their homes only to be smitten with disease and of course some of them die.

Every camp holder should clean and disinfect their camps with with fresh lime. The walls should be white washed inside and out. Plenty of lime should be on hand and should be used daily. All scraps from the tables and other waste matter should be put in buckets and barrels and hauled away every day. The grounds should be kept in a sanitary condition during the entire meeting.

It not only pays but it adds such pleasure to the time you spend on those sacred grounds to have them clean and attractive.

—T. Atchison Frazer, Health Officer.

THE SPLIT LOG.

A Popular Innovation in Educational Campaign for Better Roads. People Enthusiastic in Building Highways.

The working of hundreds of miles of state roads, in which bankers, merchants and professional men engage as well as county prisoners, is the result of the introduction of the split log drag into Texas, which has instilled among the owners of both automobiles and truck carts a desire for improved highways.

According to reports recently compiled for consideration of the Texas Welfare Commission at its next session, there are now in course of construction 437 miles of good roads within the state, with a prospect of double this amount during the next twelve months.

The Red-River-to-the Gulf highway, the much talked-of and long-hoped-for trans-state-road, when built will have a total mileage of 630 and will serve more than 50,000,000 acres of the state's most desirable agricultural land. Two thirds of the counties along the route of this proposed highway are now building their links in the great thoroughfare. It is held that the improvement adds $10,000 per mile to contiguous property, and on the basis of the building of the Red-River-to-the-Gulf highway will give a net increase of property values to property along this roadway of $400,000,000.

There are now seventy-nine counties in the state which report construction work actually in progress on the highways, and forty-seven counties will hold bond elections between now and January 1.

The average annual expenditure on public highways in the state other than bond issues, is $23.00 per mile.

Funds for improving the public highways of the state are secured from two sources, bond issues and annual road tax levy, though the bond issues are by far the most popular methods of building roads.

Not only has transportation been cheapened in these districts but the added value to the property has more than taken care of the bond issues.

Prominent Republicans

Declares For Wilson

Col. Max Hanberry, of Cadiz, a well known Republican of Trigg county, is out in a public announcement stating that he will support Woodrow Wilson for President. What little there is to the Republican party in the first district is "all shot to pieces" in the state, and there are rumors that hundreds of other republicans will follow Col. Hanberry's example, and, instead of fooling with Col. Roosevelt's "sideshow" will make their votes count by supporting the Democratic ticket. — Louisville Times.

SUGGESTION TO TAFT.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch suggests to Mr. Taft that he attempted to capture the Chicago Progressive convention after the manner that Roosevelt attempted to capture the Chicago Republican convention. This is the suggestion of the Post-Dispatch:

"Probably Mr. Taft will never have another chance to run for president and he ought to make the most of this one. We would respectfully call his attention to what in our opinion is a great opportunity which he ought to by no means neglect.

"Let him retaliate upon Colonel Roosevelt in kind. It will be remembered that Colonel Roosevelt virtually broke up Mr. Taft's convention and left it an aching void.

Why shouldn't Mr. Taft get out and capture some delegates in the other fellow's convention? Let him descend on Chicago in person, with several brass bands, and show the country the progressive stuff he is made of. Let him either sweep the boards or break up the show.

"Mr. Taft can make the world forget the first Chicago convention if he will take advantage of the second one. As a conservative

Mr. Taft is a failure. He has overdone the part, as a violent progressive, outrageous and hysterical sort of super-roosevelt we believe he has his only possible chance of success. There is nothing in law to prevent his taking the nomination of the national progressive party if he is man enough to get it."

Endorsing the Post-Dispatch the Evansville Courier carries the idea a little further and says: "If he (Taft) doesn't win he can make bristling charges of theft. He can force the Bull Moose to defend the legality of his election. He can denounce the progressive road roller, and he can have a bully time."

That is precisely the thing for Mr. Taft to do. With only a handful of supporters, as the colonel alleges, the president was able to overcome the millions who would not be happy without Roosevelt. Why can't he do it again? The thing is worth a trial.

Growing Season.

This has been a great season for the fast growing of all vegetation, especially that which requires no cultivation. John W. Polley, of this place tells of a limb which has grown 10 feet this season, and Uncle Rube Herron tells of a leaf on a bush or tree at Judge Tower's which has grown this season until it is about 33 inches in width. If anybody doubts these reports of the growing of Dixon vegetation, they can come and see for themselves. — Dixon Journal.

Those who thought Gov. McCreary was too old to be Governor have another think coming says the Blue Grass Clipper. At the Baltimore Convention endurance test he outlasted the whole bunch of Kentucky delegates. He never missed a session, staid up all of two nights and each morning was as fresh as a daisy.

A REUNION.

At a reunion at the home of Mr. C. C. Fritts on the 4th Sunday in July. All the children of Lum and Lizzie Fritts except Ed who was kept away by sickness, were present. Twenty grand-children were present. All of the persons present numbered 44 and constituted the one family consisting of sons and daughters-in-law, except five, namely, Mr. Thos. Murray and son Robt., Miss Izetta Conyer, R. M. Franks, Sam Coleman, (col.)

Some weeks before the event above mentioned the writer was requested to act as master of ceremonies and after some hesitation, consented. From nine o'clock till 10:30 the family put in their appearance. After gathering at the house and preparing a bountiful supply of lemonade, the master of ceremonies moved the visitors to the beautiful shade in the orchard where a large table had been prepared for the noon hour. Soon after we gathered at this point the different members of the family began to unload and pile up. Uncle Sam Coleman broke his former record with a barbecued mutton. It was fine, to be sure—but not with a barrel of pepper.

By request of the family the writer stood at the head of the table placing the family, beginning with Lum and his wife to his left in regular order as they came in age till that side was filled then we placed the smaller ones and the grand children on the right until all were placed. Uncle Sam stepped in at the rear of the company and after the usual preliminaries at the table the photographer proceeded to make of the company and the laden table; but before this all occurred the old family Bible was brought out and after a comment upon its value as a foundation for family government and our hope of heaven, Chap. 35, 1st, was read concluding with a prayer; then followed the scene at the table. There has been so much said on former occasions about great days and wonderful feasts that we fear it has become monotonous, but this was the climax!

At 1:30 the writer gave a reminiscence of his early knowledge of the Fritts family beginning with Uncle Peter and Aunt Mealie down to the last son and daughter of the above Christopher Columbus Fritts.

Mrs. Crawford Clark and others rendered efficiently at the organ; many of the crowd caught the inspiration and sang as never before. The photographer took several views of the company. At 4:30 we were all invited out to take supper but the things that were so royal at the noon hour had somewhat lost their taste. After singing, "God be with you till we meet again" we gave the good-bye, realizing that we had been drawn closer to each other by having spent the day together—we really felt that we were all akin Sam Coleman, colored, notwithstanding.
